

With a forecast suggesting increasing winds throughout the morning Cloudbase once again took advantage of a small weather window and managed to get out flying with their tandem passenger Penny.

They had a great flight over the white horse and out forward to the road exploring the old crop circles from last year and then flying in the wispy bits of cloud. Penny who admitted before we flew that she was scared of heights, but said that flying tandem was in her words "completely awesome" and "one of the best things she had done in ages".

Penny has just emailed this

"Hi Lee,

Thanks you so much for the Paragliding on Sunday! It was a fantastic experience the sensation of flying was amazing and the views across the country side spectacular. You're right - even though I suffer from vertigo I wasn't scared at all and in fact felt very relaxed up in the clouds - as soon as we landed wanted to go straight back up!

Thanks again".

This now makes 31 days training so far this year, fantastic.
