

With no students booked in and a forecast of increasing wind I decided to test fly the new Hybrid Paraglider called the ZunZun. It was also going to be demoed by Martin later in the day.

Martin has always wanted to speed fly but could find anything in the market that matched his weight. He is 112kg all up, the 21m² ZunZun seemed like a good wing for him.

Well what a blast, I really can't remember when my on personal paragliding was so much fun this little wing is awesome, its flying characteristics are the same as a normal size wing with nice long break travel and nice response in the turns. Watch the video or even better come and have a go.

Martin by the way bought one and it will be arriving here in a few weeks.
